With the death yesterday of John A. Donohue, accountant in the export department of J. P. Morgan & Co., and the burial of the employee of that firm to day, the number of dead in the Wall street explosion stands at thirty-five. Donohue had left the Morgan building just before the explosion, and a few moments later was seen running by the entrance at the corner of Broad and Wall streets with his clothing aflame. A German helper extinguished the flames and rushed the injured man to the Broad Street Hospital. Later he was transferred to Bellevue, where Dr. Henry W. Carr, personal physician of E. R. Stettin, member of the Morgan firm, attended him. William T. Joyce, a clerk, was the first fatality in the Morgan office. He was killed at his desk at the time of the explosion. Many of those reported among the injured were able to leave hospitals for their homes yesterday. The list given below includes those who still were in hospitals at a late hour last night. The following is a complete revised list of the dead and injured:

Lost Securities Reflects
Honesty of Public.

The National Surety Company, which carries many policies protecting brokers and banks against loss from stolen or lost securities, announced yesterday that the market value of stocks and bonds reported lost in the panic which followed the explosion at Broad and Wall streets was $212,000, with a face value of more than $200,000. Of these all but $21,000 worth have been recovered.

At the office of the secretary of the New York Stock Exchange there was obtained yesterday a list of the members who had reported lost securities. PHILADELPHIA GUARDS
AGAINST BOMB ATTACKRadicals Must Give Account of All Movements.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 17.—Public buildings, Federal and municipal, are being guarded to-night against bomb attacks. The defensive measure, which was adopted soon after word of the Wall street explosion was received Thursday afternoon, was followed by an order from Hubert White of the Department of Justice sending his agents into sections of the city where radicals congregated. While no immediate arrests are expected, it is White's intention to be informed from now on as to the "reds" doings. It is his intention to require all extremists to account for their movements from now on Wednesday.

WAR TIME RULES PUT INTO EFFECT AGAINReserve Bank and Post Office
Guarded in Kansas City.

Special to THE SUN AND NEW YORK HERALD.
KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 17.—Extra guards were placed at the Federal Reserve Bank and the Post Office building here today on telegraphic orders from Washington. Federal officials said the orders were to resume all the restrictions enforced during the war. It was assumed here that Washington officials feared the explosion in New York might be the beginning of a widespread effort of "reds" against the Government.

BIG CROWDS FLOCK
TO DISASTER SCENEWall Street Workers Have Difficulty in Getting Through Throughs.

All yesterday Wall street, Broad street and the other thoroughfares in the neighborhood of Thursday's explosion were thronged. From early morning the crowds of curiosity seekers began to fill the financial district, until by noon workers in offices on their way to lunch were almost unable to worm their way through the crowds. The regular police force from the City Hall station was on duty, together with hundreds of reserves.

Although no police lines were established through which pedestrians might not go, a system of one-way sidewalks was put into effect which was of great help in regulating the crowds. At noon, when the outdoor meeting of the stock market was over, the crowds of the American Revolution were held on the steps of the Government building. At all corners in the district several policemen were stationed to keep the traffic moving and to prevent unnecessary congestion, while practically all vehicular traffic was barred from Wall street between Broadway and William street. A large number of policemen and extra-duty uniformed policemen carefully scanned the faces of all who entered the district on constant guard against the possibility of a second explosion, or pickpockets and other degenerates. The restaurants at a tremendous business.

emn Ceremony.

On exactly the same spot on the steps of the United States Post-Office that had been kicked by the flames of a bomb on the previous day, a little handful of Sons of the American Revolution stood beneath the statue of George Washington yesterday and pledged themselves, under the exhortation of Brig.-Gen. William J. Nicholson of the United States Army, to aid in bringing to justice the perpetrators of the crime. The celebration, marking the 133d anniversary of the signing of the American Constitution, attracted the attention of thousands, not alone from Wall Street but outsiders who had thronged to the corner in curiosity.

ENGLISH MINERS STAND PAT.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—Sir Robert Stevenson Horne, president of the Board of Trade, had another abortive conference with the miners' leaders today over the controversy between the miners and the Government. The men refused to discuss any of the Government's proposals until the increase in wages demanded by the miners is granted. It was agreed, however, to meet again Monday, so as to give the delegates an opportunity to report their decision to the district branches.

MISSILES PACKED TIGHTLY

Investigation Fails to Reveal Positively the Nature of Explosive Used.

An inspection of collected fragments of the Wall street bomb at Police Headquarters and of the buildings in the immediate vicinity of the explosion was made last night by Annie Rice, for three years a special expert at high explosive plants during the war.

It sought first to ascertain by magnification and by means of tests the presence of possible traces of TNT or of nitroglycerin on any of the more significant bits of missiles and containers in the police collection. A suspicious-looking oily smear on one of the hundred shreds of broken window weights promised a prospect of nitroglycerin, but it failed to respond to the tests applied. It was brought for examination once an ordinary five gallon tin can, with the usual screw top, was found. The tin had been recently examined and repeatedly tested for evidence of residue of the latter TNT, but here again no evidence was procurable; nor was there any odor or sign to indicate that the tin had recently contained either kerosene or gasoline.

Smoke of Explosives Shown.

In conference with Capt. Carey after the rather fruitless investigation of the office evidence, including the remains of the harness, Mr. Rice demonstrated that the color of the smoke produced by each of these high explosives was different. The color of the smoke produced by TNT burned on the floor quite differently and slowly, emitting a cloud of black smoke. The 8-called smokeless powder, which roughly is of the same mechanical properties as the usual smokeless powder, and celluloid articles, burned more rapidly and with a bright yellow flame.

Mr. Rice gave it as his opinion that if spectators at the scene saw great yellow smoke ascending up to a considerable height, as some have asserted, it might have been from the burning of a quantity of smokeless powder not properly combined with the more powerful explosive.

In that case the higher explosive substance, probably detonated by a fulminate of mercury cap, "went off" and caused the violent damage, and in the process of detonation produced heat and flash which merely ignited the smokeless powder, which flamed up, with an incidental blast of air of lesser violence, but with sufficient force to produce the impulse some witnesses report as having experienced about three seconds after the sense of the first violent shock.

At the scene of the explosion, all the original loose objects having been removed, Mr. Rice confined his scrutiny to the marks upon stone work and metal work on each side of Wall street adjacent to the building of J. P. Morgan & Co. He found that the discolored marks and streaks here and there plainly seen from the sidewalk were caused by violent contact of fragments of spokes and other parts of the old wagon, old dull reddish paint and dull yellowish thin fragments of wood fibre still adhering in thin films and producing the marks.

$20,550 Reward Offered in Wall Street Bomb Hunt

REWARDS aggregating $20,550 were offered yesterday for the conviction of the perpetrators of the Wall street bomb disaster.

The city, through the Board of Estimate, offered $10,000 for such evidence, and an additional reward of $500 for information which will lead to the identification of the horse drawn dray which is believed to have carried the explosive into Wall street.

The Preferred Accident Company of 80 Maiden lane announced that it will put up $10,000.

The Jeff Feigl Post of the American Legion offered $500. Thomas W. Lamont, one of the partners in the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., two of whose employees were killed and many injured, denied that his firm intends offering any reward. He said the investigation is a matter of public rather than private concern. Mr. Lamont denied also any knowledge of a reported plan among bankers to make a pool of $100,000 as a reward for information leading to convictions.

Great enough to go over the heads of sidewalk passersby, who, before such a missile, must early have been cut in twain.

Bored Through Metal Doors.

Nine or more little holes through metal doors in the United States Assay Office were uniform in size, as though produced by some missile about the size of a .32 calibre bullet, and the walls opposite the Morgan building were pitted in scores of places with saw-like depressions of similar size. What such missiles could have been is problematical. They might have been ten penny wire nails, cut up into short cylindrical lengths, but neither the police collection of fragments nor a search of the vicinity revealed any bit of metal that might have produced such marks.

The great volume of destructive hits were concentrated upon what might be considered a ten foot circle at the front of the Assay Office, with a similar stream of damage continuing on up to the top of the building. Immediately opposite this principal direction of missiles the Morgan building, across the street, showed in a larger circle, with smaller and more scattered hits, the main assault in that direction.

These two principal points, directly opposite each other, may indicate that the explosive was contained in a length of heavy water pipe, which itself was cut and flared and torn to bits by the explosion. It might possibly mean that the high explosive was contained in a big iron kettle, with perhaps 100 to 200 of the window weight chunks packed about inside this crude container.

One of these sections of long, previously broken up window weights was discovered during the day on a Court-and-street ferry, indicating its possible arrival after a hurling flight of about a third of a mile, probably completely over the top of Trinity Church steeple.

NATURALIZED CITIZENS
WARNED OF OUTRAGEJudge Refers to Disaster Before Administering Oath.

The bombing of the financial district became an indirect topic in a brief lecture delivered by Justice Gleicher in the Bronx Supreme Court yesterday, before he naturalized 200 aliens. Holding their certificates in their hands, new citizens of the United States listened to the following:

"If there are any of you who have in your mind's thoughts inimical to our Government or who would change our form of government let them step aside now, for they will only be taking a perjured oath of allegiance. The perjury will eventually be found out, and when it is you will be punished, for with discovery will come expulsion from our shores."

No one stepped out of the line and the oath of citizenship was administered without further comment or warning.

SEES IN BLAST SIGNAL
THAT REDS ARE ON JOBChicago Prosecutor Foresees
Further Outrages.

Special to THE SUN AND NEW YORK HERALD.
CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—The Wall street explosion is merely a signal of the internationalism that the Reds are on the job, in the opinion of Frank Comerford, Mr. Comerford prosecuted successfully William Brown Lloyd and nineteen other Communists in their recent trial here. The New York outrage will be followed by syndicalism or mass action strikes and further efforts of terrorism, he predicted.

"The Red agitation has not reached its peak in America and further outrages can be expected," he said.

"The conspirators to destroy the government are the Socialists, I. W. W. and Communists. They have formed a merger. The I. W. W. is the most formidable of these, because under the guise of labor it has become a nucleus of Red forces."

Meantime, the police here are guarding closely La Salle street buildings. A guard also was thrown about the City Hall. The guard in La Salle street was doubled this noon, the time of the New York explosion. The Federal authorities started an investigation and sought by the process of elimination to establish what "Red" leaders were out of the city at the time of the tragedy.

Capt. Edward J. Brennan of the Secret Service agents of the Department of Justice here said that he had sent special agents to all Red headquarters to check up on the leaders who are out of Chicago at present. By this means it is hoped that the New York authorities might have something tangible to work on.
